DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-2 and 4-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Minami (US 2003/0030884).

Regarding claims 1, 2, and 4, Minami discloses a first electrode (Fig. 13A, 5c), a second electrode (Fig. 13A, 5d) and a plurality of closed spaces divided by partitions (Fig. 13); wherein the closed spaces contains an electrophoretic suspension in which electrophoretic particles are dispersed in a dispersion medium, and the electrophoretic particles migrate by applying a voltage to the first electrode and the second electrode (Fig. 13 and Abstract); a component is disposed between the closed spaces and at least one of the first electrode and the second electrode (Fig. 13, 5g). Minami discloses the claimed invention except for the specific characteristics of the materials for the component. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to determine the appropriate materials for the component, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

Regarding claims 5 and 7, Minami discloses the claimed invention except for the materials for the electrophoretic particles and the materials for the component. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to determine the appropriate materials for the electrophoretic particles and the materials for the component, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

Regarding claim 6, Minami discloses wherein the electrophoretic particles comprise positively charged particles and negatively charged particles which have colors different from each other (Fig. 2I).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 3 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. The allowable feature being: wherein the first material and the second material have different holding abilities for holding an uneven distribution state of the electrophoretic particles without applying any voltage.
